Garden State Watercolor Society Newsletter

Diana Wilkoc Patton 497 Stony Brook Drive Bridgewater, NJ 08807

Message from the President

Finally color has returned to our world and Spring is here. What inspiration to get out and paint! It's been a busy five months for me.

It seems planning for shows never ends. Just when one is finished, it's on to the next exhibit. Many thanks and appreciation to our board, committees, and volunteers who make it all happen. Anything is possible when dedicated members make it all happen. I'm going to put down my pen and pick up a brush any minute now.

Our Members Exhibit at the 1860 House, Montgomery Cultural Center was the best yet. I hope everyone saw it. The awards increased from $1,300 to over $2,400 this year and three paintings sold.

Don't forget to get those paintings ready for the GSWS & Eden benefit at the Princeton Hyatt Sale July 22. Even though there was a commission increase, we still outdid ourselves in sales last year.

The prospectus for our 32nd Open Juried Show at Ellarslie, September 8, is being mailed. The awards have increased from $5,000 to over $7,000 for the 2001 exhibit. Also make plans for the Associates Show in October and the September Fall Workshop.

Workshop.

We are again sending out the GSWS Questionnaire in this Newsletter. It is very important that we know who the artists are that are interested in doing demos at our exhibitions, volunteering for receiving, committees, or upcoming board positions, suggesting sites for future shows, and anything else that you might think interesting. Please let your thoughts on this be known to us. We need to utilize the talents of our members. We know that some of you are interested but just don't know how to go about letting us know what you can do. This is your opportunity to be a part of it all. It's amazing how you make friends and how much information you pick up by working as a volunteer on some type of committee with fellow artists. For any inquiries please call me 609/259-3502 or e-mail me: dpaglione@aol.com.

We are colors in this big palette of life. Have a wonderful summer and follow your heart!

Deborah Paglione, President

Fall Watercolor Workshop

Chairwoman Lucy McVicker has announced that Joel Popadics will give a three day workshop Friday, 9/21/01 through Sunday 9/23/01 at the 1860 House, Montgomery Cultural Center, in Skillman, N.J. ARTISTS MAGAZINE refers to him as "one of today's top landscape painters." Primarily noted for his traditional style of landscape painting, Popadics' one-man shows include one at the Bergen Museum of Art and Science, and his work has appeared in numerous juried exhibitions, at the National Academy of Design and the Salmagundi Club, among others. The cost for the three days is just $150., or $65. per day. For reservations e-mail Lucy McVicker (mcvicker@tcn.edu) or phone her at 609/924-2660. The available spots are filling fast!

Welcome, once again it's spring and your Newsletter is here to keep you updated during this most lovely season. You can read this outside. It's warm and sunny; go ahead! And smell the honeysuckle! View the peonies and pansies. Guess which plump robin is pregnant. And then paint.

2001 Full Members Exhibit— A Show to Remember

The Garden State Watercolor Society's 2001 Full Members Exhibit, which took place from March 30 to May 20, 2001, contained some of the finest watercolor paintings being done in the state today. The show was set in the beautiful surroundings of the 1860 House, Montgomery Cultural Center, in Skillman, N.J.

If you were at the reception and Awards Ceremony on Sunday, April 1st, you were among many in attendance who not only enjoyed the show but also the delightful music provided by the Woodland Consort and the terrific watercolor demo given by full member Judi Gilden. Marguerite Breen did an outstanding job overseeing and setting up the delicious food and punch available to all that day. During the Awards Ceremony over $2,400. in awards were given, thanks to the generosity of the many donors to this show. The artists winning awards for their excellent work were as follows:

Tom Rutledge, Marguerite Breen, Bernice Fatto, Deborah Paglione

The jurors had no easy task choosing the winners from the 55 paintings exhibited. This year the jurors were Lisa Tinsman, who has administered the Educational Testing Service Art Program for the last seven years, coordinating art exhibits for ETS as well as maintaining their corporate art collection, and Michael T. Mercadante, who owns and operates Island Earth Art Gallery in Surf City, N.J. and who, although trained as an artist, has represented artists for the last nine years, placing over twenty in galleries throughout the United States.

The show was a success in every way, including the sale of three paintings: Rachel Hendershott's painting "Terra Cotta," "Garden Mosaic" by Maureen Gass, and the painting pictured on our invitation and catalog, "Summer Reflections" by Robert E. Heyer. The 2001 Exhibit was also memorable in part due to the many members who volunteered to work behind the scenes, doing the many tasks involved. We thank them here: Deborah Paglione, Marguerite Breen and her mother, Bernice Fatto, Lorraine Williams, Linda Bradshaw, Nancy Alm, Rosemary Hutchins, Lucy McVicker, Maureen Gass, Gloria Wiernik, and associate member Lorrie Findra. Again, thanks to all.

Without a doubt it was a show to remember, and we look forward eagerly to next year's show.

Hoorah for the Hyatt Show

Margo Froehlich is again running the Princeton Hyatt Regency Hotel Art Show with Nancy Humes of the Eden Family of Services, this year on Sunday, July 22nd. You've already received your prospectus (and replied!). Each year this show seems to get more elegant and have more beautiful works as well as sell more. Last summer over one thousand paintings were submitted and 237 sold. The Eden Family of Services with the GSWS takes 40% commission, and the show is once again held in the very lovely ballroom of the Princeton Hyatt. If you need more information, or—would even like to help out on that magical day—please phone Margo at 609/921-6020.

Volunteers Welcome!

Hello, out there! Do you wish to know some friendly watercolorists a little better? Can you make time in your busy schedule for some interesting "work" to help the GSWS? If so, the Garden State Watercolor Society is ready to welcome you with painted arms and a rosy heart. We are in SPECIAL NEED of a web page editor (we have a listing, but it's not been updated)—any active computer artist (I refuse to say "nerd") willing to step forward? Please call President Deborah Paglione at 609/259-3502 if you can help anywhere. And THANK YOU

A Few Additions

Bits and Pieces

"Art in the Park", sponsored by the Cranbury Arts Council, is an open invitation for artists to paint one Sunday each month, May through October, in or around one of Cranbury's beautiful parks (editor's note: Cranbury is a most delightful place). This year "Art in the Park" is being held in Memorial Park, across from the lake, offering views of Brainerd Lake, the Millstone River, and dozens of historical buildings. Each Sunday event, from noon to 4:00, is hosted by a member of the Cranbury Arts Council, and offers guidance and critique by an accomplished local artist. Participants bring their own materials. Upcoming dates include Sunday, July 15, critique by Nadine Berkowsky; August 19th, critique by Judy Buckley; Sept. 16, critique by Donna Senopoulous; and October 21, critique by Virginia Swanagan. This news was passed on by GSWS Associate Bob Virgadamo. More info? 609/395-7050 or e-mail Bob at boby@cranbury.org.

Some of you may be interested in learning more (or even joining the membership of) the National Association of Women Artists, Inc., headquarters at 41 Union Square West #906, New York, New York, 10003-3278. N.A.W.A. is the oldest professional women's fine arts organization in the U.S. Through programs and exhibitions of its members N.A.W.A. fosters awareness of the contributions of women artists in the ongoing history of American art.

With revisions and trips to the printer, etc. this Newsletter will probably not be out before the Starry Night Gala, a Benefit for the 1860 House, Montgomery Cultural Center, on June 30th, but we want you to be extra aware of the 1860 House and its many fine programs. You may want to phone them at 609/921-3272 to learn more. Their summer programs, for adults, children, and teens is particularly impressive. The 1860 House is also the venue for various concerts, many exhibits, and the Impromptu Cafe. (Editor's note: It is also available for special occasions, such as wedding and other receptions).

GSWS Associate Member Ellen Faber is a commissioner for the Hillsborough Township Cultural and Arts Commission and would like you all to know that the Commission is working on further restoring the historic Vanderveer House on Rte. 206 in Hillsborough, with the object of creating a visual arts exhibit space in the township. This space, however, would be open for shows for non-township residents. If you are interested in this, or would like to have any part in this, you may phone Ellen at 908/359-4341.

Opportunities

- Full Member MARGARET CRAWFORD will hold a two-day workshop, sponsored by the Pineshores Art Association Tues. & Wed., August 7,8th. Please contact Margaret about this and other workshops at 732/531-9440.

IN MEMORIUM

Cynthia Chrisner, a new Associate Member, died on May 27th. She lived in Hamilton and had so much to share and not enough time with us. We're sure she is painting the sky a little bluer for us these days.

Treasures To Go from the Smithsonian American Art Museum

GSWS friend Andy Skislak alerted your editor to a very fine exhibit, "American Impressionism", which was at the Jane Voorhees Zimmerli Art Museum in New Brunswick from March 4—May 20. This gem of a show, which moves on to the Portland (Maine) Museum of Art, June 21-Oct. 21, (many GSWSers go-Maine in the summer) and then to the Norton Museum of Art in West Palm Beach, Florida Nov. 17, 2001 to Jan. 20, 2002 (and many of you are winter sun lovers), is only part of "Treasures to Go", the most extensive art tour ever. More than 500 of the Smithsonian American Art Museum's finest artworks, organized as eight thematic exhibitions, will visit about 70 museums throughout the United State. For example, "Modernism & Abstraction" is presently at the Allentown Art Museum in Allentown, PA until June 17th but it will also be at the National Academy of Design in New York Feb. 6-April 7, 2002.

"American Impressionism" was a joy of a show, featuring 51 paintings by our American Impressionists. Most of us are familiar with the likes of Mary Cassat and James McNeil Whistler, Childe Hassam, John Twachtman, and Maurice Prendergast, and there are certainly wonderful examples of each of their works. But I was particularly drawn to the light and serenity of such paintings as J. Alden Weir's "Upland Pasture" with its extremely high horizon, golden-hued grass, and skillfully placed meadow rocks, and Emil Carlsen's "The South Strand" with a beautiful mass of cumulus clouds, a truly lyrical beached dory, and a very low horizon line. Once again you get the magic of Childe Hassam in his "The South Ledges, Appledore" with a woman, the cliffs, and the ocean, and the charm and color of his "Celia Thaxter in Her Garden" (on Appledore Island, off the New Hampshire coast). I could literally feel the snow in the air in John Henry Twachtman's "Round Hill Road" (in Connecticut) and the chill in Willard L. Metcalf's "Snow in the Foothills". As a watercolorist particularly drawn to "gardenscapes", I was once again drawn to Maria Oakey Dewing's knee-level view of her "Garden in May".

There were many lovely surprises in the show as well, since I was not familiar with Robert Reid and his "The White Parasol" where the flowers in the graceful lady's arm are integrated expertly into the field of flowers behind her. What awesome lilies! I'd not seen Daniel Garber's work before—his view of "Tohickon", from a hillside above Tohickon Creek and gorge, near New Hope, was fascinating, with a complex composition and of course, the light and color of Impressionism. I must also mention Birge Harrison's "Winter Sunset" an icy gem of a painting, with the cool colors of ice floes contrasting with the rosy glow of sunset. The exhibit was so special that since the "catalog", a handsome and informative book, was sold out, when I went down to the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., I found the Smithsonian "American Impressionism" catalog/book there and bought it ($19.95).

Two things are important to note and one is certainly that these "Treasures to Go" may be found in any place you may happen to visit and I'm sure any of the themed shows are well worth your time. Secondly, the Zimmerli Museum, right in New Brunswick, is superb, with many wonderful works in their permanent collections. On the corner of George & Hamilton Streets, there is limited parking in some lots, as well as metered street parking, not too difficult to find, now that Rutgers U. is not quite as busy with all its students. The museum is open Tues—Fri, 10am -4:30pm and weekends noon-5, admission $3, but free on the first Sunday of every month. Only a bit smaller than the Whitney Museum in New York, I believe Rutgers University's Zimmerli is the third largest university museum in the country and it is certainly a "Destination Treat". As well as their permanent collections, right now the "Uncommon Vision of Sergei Konenkov (1874-1971) is on through Sept. 30 and "A World of Story" is on through July 31st, as is "New Acquisitions from Central Asia".

Robert Reid's "The White Parasol" were also on view this spring at the Summit Bank in Princeton. Deborah just became acting President of the Washington Township Arts Council. As Artistic Director she created the WTAC 3rd Annual Juried Art Exhibit and was on the jurying committee for WTAC scholarships for four students to go to Mercer County Community College for its summer arts programs. Her photographs were in shows recently with the Princeton Photography Club at the Educational Testing Service in Princeton and Capital Health Care Systems at Mercer. She will have an opening at the Monnaie Gallery in Princeton this summer, and will have a reception August 1st at the Island Earth Art Gallery in Surf City.

DIANA WILKOC PATTON had a one-woman exhibit in the Madison Gallery, Morristown Memorial Hospital April 15 - May 25, with fifty watercolors. She also won First, Professional Category, in the Bridgewater Township Arts Show, and her students exhibited in the Somerset County Library. Diana's "Tomato Studio" is now at Seton Hall University in the juried full members show of the NJWCS, which runs until August 20.

Associates CHUCK PERSON and PATRICE SPROVIERI had a two-person exhibit at the Medical Center at Princeton Auxiliary in Princeton March 16 - May 16. Their Opening Reception was March 16th.

Associate DOROTHY McCOMB SENK won first Prize in the Monmouth Arts Gallery's Millennium Art Show, held at the West Long Branch Library with her watercolor "Where's the Bull?". Dorothy also won Second Prize at the Ruth Crown Memorial Show in Middletown Library, Middletown. Her work was also included in the American Artists Professional League Members Show in Island Heights, N.J.

Associate CAROL STAUB had her work juried into the A.E. "Bean" Backus Gallery & Museum in Ft. Pierce, Florida, for their exhibit "The Four County Juried Show" which ran from April 4 until April 22.

LINDA TAFFE was accepted into Full Membership with the New Jersey Water Color Society and exhibited at the Paper Mill in their Members Exhibit. Her work was in the NJWCS 2000 Open at the Monmouth Museum and also in GSWS Open 2000 for the third consecutive time, so she attained Full Membership. Linda was also accepted into Catharine Lorillard Wolfe juried 2000 Show at the National Arts Club in N.Y. City.

JAMES TOOGOOD wrote an article for the February issue of THE ARTIST'S MAGAZINE titled "Behind the Scenes"—From start to finish—master the elements that will improve your watercolor landscapes.

ELIZABETH A. UMBERGER and associates MARGERY PRIOR and HELEN KEDZIERSKI, exhibited mixed media art work in February 2001 at the Ewing branch of the Mercer County Library system on Scotch Road in Ewing. Thirty works were displayed, twenty of them watercolors, featuring florals, covered bridges, landscapes, and seascapes.

Associate THOMAS C. WILCZEWSKI has been chosen by the Christopher Reeve Foundation to be a contributor to their calendar for 2002.

Wilczewski's watercolor "Saturday Wash" was one of many submitted to the foundation by VSA Arts (an organization dedicated to promoting arts by the disabled which is an affiliate of the JFK Center for Performing Arts). The Christopher Reeve Foundation will distribute over 100,000 calendars throughout the USA.

Associate KAY WITHINGTON and Nancy Robinson had a two-woman show at the Bernardsville Library Gallery March 3 - 31, 2001. Their Opening Reception was March 11th.

And so we come to the end of this issue, and I'm grateful for all the news you've sent me. Feel free to keep those cards and letters coming, at any time, although our next deadline isn't until December 15th. But I won't rush this season; it's such a lovely time! Anything to do with summer is a FINE thing (even those Countrytime lemonade long summer commercials). We'll all paint OUTDOORS and we'll view the blossoms, watch tomatoes grow, and wet our feet in the ocean, a lake, a pool, or a mud puddle. Enjoy YOUR summer!
